... often the policies were restrictive in their terms and conditions, had an insufficient capacity that covers less than $70 million and the underwriting itself was extremely expensive.

She said that unlike typical

IP insurers, risk management firms, such as Aon Risk Services, insure patent portfolios of medium to large companies and often write policies protecting entire portfolios or segments of a portfolio.

"With risk-management services we are learning how to take risk and turn it into value creation, and we are also learning ...
